One of the most common problems horses face is injuries or abrasions to their coat caused by spurs, riding boots, or even during the molting season on their flanks. This can be prevented by using a protective girth.

The “Superior Chafe Guard Evo” spur protection girth is made from a high-quality, elastic material that is highly breathable. This allows already injured horse skin to continue to breathe, enabling it to heal more quickly. The spur protection is reinforced in the area near the rider’s foot, meaning the fabric is particularly sturdy there. However, we would like to point out that “sharp” spurs can still damage the material.
