Discover the new generation of the Freedom bridle—the Freedom II. With a completely redesigned model, we’re setting new standards for horse-friendliness and comfort.
Freedom of movement for the ears: The unique Freedom bridle takes your horse’s anatomy and biomechanics into account. Along with the eyes, the ears are a horse’s most important means of communication. Neither the browband nor the headpiece of the Freedom bridle crosses the horse’s 16 ear muscles. Since no pressure is exerted on nerves or veins, the Freedom bridle allows for full freedom of movement for the ears. Willingness to Move and Motivation: The special positioning of the headstall and throatlatch ensures that the sensitive areas of the neck and throat are spared. This prevents the horse’s flight instincts from being triggered. Instead of causing resistance and discomfort, the horse can freely express its full enthusiasm for movement and willingness to cooperate. The stress factors often caused by conventional bridles are avoided. Unobstructed Field of Vision: With conventional bridles, the field of vision is often restricted toward the rear by the cheek pieces. With the Freedom bridle, the horse’s field of vision remains unobstructed thanks to the innovative cheek piece design: the arch avoids the eye and sensitive nerves in this area. Completely redesigned bridle:

- The Freedom bridle was completely redesigned in collaboration with an equine dentist to make it even more comfortable for horses while optimizing the fit:
- the headpiece has been positioned further back and tapered in the center to better accommodate the ears and neck
- thanks to the rearward position, the field of vision to the rear is even clearer
- additional, soft padding in the ear cutout area enhances comfort
- An even softer, anatomically shaped chin pad with dimensions tailored to each size
- Redesigned arched cheekpieces to ensure an unbroken line to the bit
- A consistently correct fit of the headpiece behind the ears across all sizes
- Wider noseband with soft padding for even greater comfort and a more elegant look
- Pressure relief achieved by a cutout in the noseband padding near the molars
- A single, shared cheek piece for the noseband and bit optimizes the fit of the bridle and also improves the appearance by reducing the amount of material on the horse’s head
- A more delicate headstrap
- Optimized fit thanks to completely redesigned dimensions and patterns for all sizes
- The redesigned Freedom snaffle bridle is equipped with the new Slide&Lock closure
