CoolAid cooling wraps provide an easy way to cool your horses' tendons and ligaments after training or competition, or to support them in the event of leg injuries.
These cooling bandages are one of several products developed after years of laboratory and field testing of the Coolcore material, which led to an "Innovative Technology" award from the Hohenstein Institute, recognized worldwide for its market-leading testing systems for the textile industry. The cooling leg wraps provide compression while simultaneously reducing inflammation, dissipating heat, and helping to relieve pain. They can be used wet or placed in ice or the freezer to achieve maximum cooling performance.
Application: Wet, wring out, and shake to activate the fibers before applying, or wet and freeze. We recommend placing the wraps in a plastic bag before putting them in the freezer up to 1 hour before use. The material remains up to 30% cooler than the horse's leg
