The WESLEY, a cozy, soft, and stretchy glove for use in the paddock and for leisure, is a versatile all-rounder suitable for all activities on the way to and in the stable. What also sets them apart is their exceptionally high recycled content—which conserves raw materials and helps protect nature and the environment. The PrimaLoft® Performance Fabric Energy Series Solid Waves functional fabric, with its soft, brushed interior, is responsible for the gloves' unparalleled comfort, pleasant feel against the skin, and reliable warmth retention. This super-flexible 4-way stretch material is made of 95 percent recycled polyester from plastic waste and 5 percent spandex. It is also highly breathable, dries quickly, and features an abrasion-resistant, silky-smooth outer surface that resists wear and tear. The palm has been reinforced with a trim made from the new ECO.SENSE®. The pleasantly soft, grippy, and durable ECO.SENSE® is a partially recycled synthetic suede made of 92 percent polyester and 8 percent spandex. Incidentally, 60 percent of the polyester used consists of recycled, GRS-certified yarn, which was also derived from waste materials such as old PET bottles. As part of the ROECKL SPORTS ECO.SERIES collection, the WESLEY is designed to be as resource-efficient as possible—while maintaining its first-class quality. Even the logo was crafted from wood waste generated during wood processing. As with all natural products, the texture and grain are unique—making each glove one-of-a-kind! Back of the hand: PrimaLoft® Performance Fabric Energy Series Solid Waves
